

NFFE News

Connect with NFFE Today

February 7, 2025

The National Federation of Federal Employees (NFFE) is rolling out a new platform for union members and bargaining unit employees (BUEs) to stay in touch if NFFE staff are prohibited from contacting federal workers through their government email addresses.

We are also concerned that this Administration will prevent NFFE staff from being able to meet with union members and BUEs in agency buildings and workplaces.

During the first Trump presidency, officials explored the idea of banning payroll deductions of union dues for federal workers. NFFE expects an executive order implementing this policy to be announced in the very near future. When this executive order is issued, we will need member and BUE contact information so we can announce our direct dues platform and continue to represent you.

It is imperative that you please fill out the form at nffe.org/connect. We strongly encourage you to share this update with your colleagues far and wide. This update has been sent out via email. If you have not already signed up to receive emails from us, you can do so on the homepage at nffe.org.

www.NFFE.org